

Tout Your Pet And Win $250 Toward Pet Travel In "Jet My Pet" Twitter Giveaway

Traveling with pets shouldn't be a hassle. Where I've Been has teamed with Pet Airways to give away $250 to try Pet Airways, the only airline that specializes in flying your dog or cat, in the Jet My Pet Twitter Giveaway.

(FV Newswire) February 08, 2010 -- What has four legs, fur, and can fly with ease?

Join Where I've Been and Pet Airways' "Jet My Pet" Twitter Giveaway, and it could be one lucky dog or cat.

From 9 a.m. on Tuesday, January 12th to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, January 13th, users who follow both Where I've Been and Pet Airways on Twitter and tweet their pet's name next to the contest message, which will be announced on the Where I've Been Twitter page, will then automatically enter in their pets for a chance to win a $250 voucher from Pet Airways.

All are encouraged to read the Terms and Conditions of the contest and participate.

"We know how many travelers are concerned about the safety of their pets on planes," says Where I've Been CEO Michael Dalesandro. "We admire Pet Airways and we're excited to give consumers the chance to use their service."

Traveling with pets by air typically means leaving a pet at the mercy of the airline companies, whose disparate procedures have led consumers to worry about pet safety. Additionally, pet owners suffer stress simply in the logistical hassle of planning to bring pets along for a trip. Pet Airways gives owners an alternative to the uncertainty brought by pet travel.

By giving users the chance to tout their pets' names on Twitter, Where I've Been and Pet Airways hope to bring awareness to pet owners and their adoration for their pets.

The $250 voucher can be used for pet travel through any of the Pet Airways destinations now currently available. All are directed to read the Terms and Conditions of the contest.

Pet Airways is the first scheduled airline specifically designed for the comfortable, efficient transportation of pets. Pet Airways' "pawsengers" travel in the specially equipped main cabin of its planes - well-lit, climate-controlled and pressurized - with a trained pet attendant on duty at all times. With Pet Airways, pet parents can be assured their pets will be treated with tender, loving care throughout the journey. The airline launched in 2009, and provides coast-to-coast service from Los Angeles, Phoenix, Denver, Omaha, Chicago, Baltimore, New York and Fort Lauderdale.

Where I've Been is the Web's leading social travel application that spans social networks, blogs, and homepages.

On Where I've Been, users can now:

Where I've Been
Eddie Schmid
773-303-8071